(2×21=42)

When I got on the train, I was happy to find a seat. I took the seat. I was tired, because I played tennis after school (1) a long time. There was a high school boy (2) sit next to me. He had a big baseball bag. I thought he played baseball after school.

The train was *crowded. When the train stopped (3) the next station, a young mother with her baby got on the train. She looked for a seat, but she could not find (4) one. She (5) [me / front / in / stood / just / of], and her baby began to cry.

I really wanted to stand up and give my seat to her. But I looked down and closed my eyes. I *said to myself, “I know I should be kind to the mother, but (6) I am too tired to give my seat to her.” I knew this was my *excuse. Just then, the high school boy next to me stood up and said, “Please sit here.” I [(7)] my eyes and looked up. The young mother said, “Thank you,” and sat down. The boy looked tired, but said to her, “(8) どういたしまして.” I was so *ashamed that I was *depressed and closed my eyes again.

When I got home, I talked about (9) this with my elder sister. She said, “If you don't stand up (10) quick, you will miss the chance to give your seat to others. If you see such a woman next time, you can do it, (11) () ()?” I said, “(12) もちろん.” She said, “You will find that it is easy to give your seat to others. If you do it, you will feel [(13)].”

The next day the train was crowded. When an old man (14) a big bag got on the train, I stood up and said, “[(15)].” That was easy and I was happy. When I came home, I said to her, “I did it.”

*(注) be crowded: 満員である say to oneself: つぶやく excuse: 言い訳
be ashamed: はずかしく思う be depressed: 元気がなくなる
